

STUDENT SERVICES

All GeT MA students receive intensive academic advising, but also have access to comprehensive student services. Students benefit from individualized assistance from the moment of acceptance, throughout their time in the program as well as after graduation as GeT MA alumni.

APPLICATIONS

Applications are welcome from students from Germany, Turkey, Europe, and around the world! Applicants should be interested in obtaining comprehensive knowledge of the German and Turkish political and social systems as well as the European dimension of politics in both countries.

Applicants must possess at least a BA degree in a relevant area of study and are furthermore expected to possess very good English language skills.

TUITION FEES & SCHOLARSHIPS

GeT MA is a fee-based program. Program-based scholarship opportunities exist and many tuition reductions are also available. There is no extra scholarship application process. Applicants submit a form with their application materials.

MASTERS
PROGRAM
IN SOCIAL SCIENCES

The German-Turkish Masters Program in Social Sciences (GeT MA) is a unique, interdisciplinary, integrated Masters Program at two leading international universities: Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Germany and the Middle East Technical University (METU) in Ankara, Turkey.

Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

German Turkish Masters Program in Social Sciences is a four semester, two-year Masters Program at the Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin and the Middle East Technical University (METU) in Ankara with students studying their first year at METU's Graduate School of Social Sciences (GSSS) and their second year at Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin's Graduate School of Social Sciences (BGSS) at the Institute of Social Sciences. Upon completion, a Dual-Master of Arts Degree in Social Sciences from both partner universities is awarded.

Courses in Sociology, Politics and Governance, and International Relations and Globalization offer students a specialized perspective on politics and society in Turkey and Germany, German-Turkish relations as well as the European dimension of domestic and foreign politics in both countries. Furthermore, students gain practical experience through an internship in either Turkey or Germany between their first and second year.

GeT MA classes are taught in English at Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin and Middle East Technical University. Students have the opportunity to learn German and Turkish at both universities. GeT MA prepares students for international careers in government agencies, in the private sector, NGOs, administration, journalism and in research.

METU Ankara

ACADEMIC PROGRAM

GeT MA is an international Masters Program in Social Sciences, in which methods and approaches are taught specific to the research areas.

The GeT MA curriculum focuses on three particular research areas:

- Politics and Society in Turkey; Turkey as a regional and international player;
- Politics and Society in Germany; Germany as a regional and international player;
- European politics of Turkey and Germany, Europeanization.

Courses at both universities are taught specifically for GeT MA students in small classes with elective course options also available. At the heart of the curriculum is the concept of 'Joint-Teaching': core courses are taught by a team of professors from Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin and Middle East Technical University.
